Moshe told the people about the Land. He described it as “a land of streams, of water, of fountains and springs, that flow out of valleys and hills, a land of wheat and barley, of vines and fig trees and pomegranates, a land of olive oil and honey, a land in which you eat bread without scarcity, in which you do not lack at all, a land whose stones are iron and out of whose hills you dig copper.”

He also warned them about what would happen if they went astray and served pagan gods. YHWH would keep it from raining, and no food would grow. They would not be able to live there anymore. If they continued to serve YHWH they would get to stay in the Land and would have plenty of food to eat and water to drink. They only needed to obey all of His commandments.
