If you will remember from last week, Tzara'at is something similar to leprosy, but we do not know exactly what it was. Even walls could get tzara'at. If a Kohen looked at the walls of a house and there were green or red spots, deeper than the surface on the wall, the house would be contaminated. The bricks and mortar with the tzara'at had to be removed and new ones put in place.

If the tzara'at returned, the house would have to be demolished, but if it didn't the house would be purified, and wouldn't have to be destroyed.
