YHWH continued talking to Moshe. He told him about special clothing for the kohanim (priests) to wear. For the Kohen HaGadol (High Priest) there was to be made an Ephod, a type of girdle, of gold; with turquoise, purple, and scarlet wool, and twisted linen. On its shoulder straps were to be two stones, with the names of the twelve tribes; six on each.

Also to be made, was a breastplate with four rows. On the first row were a sardius, a topaz, and a carbuncle. On the second row an emerald, a sapphire, and a diamond. On the third row a ligure, an agate, and an amethyst. On the fourth and last row a beryl, an onyx, and a jasper. On each stone, they were to engrave the names of each of the twelve tribes.

There were golden bells for him to wear, so that he would live when he entered and exited the tabernacle, because they would ring.

There was supposed to be a head plate, made of gold, engraved with "Kodesh (holy) to YHWH". It was to be put on a turban on Aharon's head.

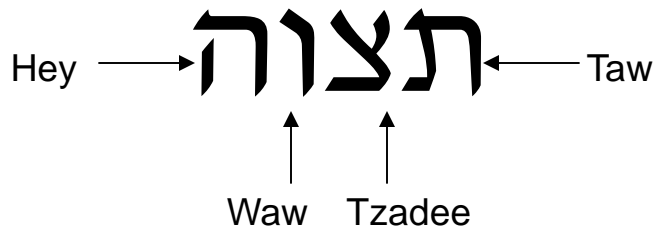

The other kohanim, Aharon's sons, wore similar clothing, but not as much. They wouldn't be wearing breastplates.

They were also supposed to make an incense altar and put it near the Ark of the Covenant. Only special incense was to be burned on it.
